ARE YOU A MEMBER OF THE UNION, SIR?

This Question Will Be Asked
by Boxing Bruisers in Future in England

LONDON, May 25.—When a British boxer of the future meets his fellow artist he will inquire, "Are you a member of the union?" For the boxers' union is the latest thing in protective organizations.

World possibilities loom on the horizon in consequence of this outcome of the present boxing boom in England. To have such allies on their side in a general strike will surely appeal strongly to the workmen, for what police would care to meet a body of professional pugilists if the latter decided to make a stand in any locality in a dispute between capital and labor?

British law permits "peaceful persuasion" on the part of pickets outside works where masters and men have come to loggerheads. When what the American calls a strike-breaker and the British trade unionist denounces as a "scab" or a "blackleg" comes along for a vacant job the picketing strikers go their level best to persuade him his intention is both foolish and wicked. Employers whose relations with their workmen are not exactly placid are wondering today what chance there will be of securing blacklegs enough if the picketing is done by a gang of trained pugilists in sympathy with the employees. The "persuasion" exercised by a set of local John L. Sullivans will obviously be more effective than that of a struggling line of narrow-shouldered warehousemen.

Organize Boxers' Union.
As is often the case in such organizations, the brain behind the scheme is outside the profession affected. So far as is known, the knowledge box of Robert Green, the father of the union, has never been rattled by a swift upstart on the point of the chin.

Everybody who has studied the inner workings of the British union knows how the men who wear the buttons have been exploited by an audacious combination.
"It is on record," says Green in support of his union, "that men of skill and boxing ability have been paid as little as half a dollar for a six round contest by promoters who enjoy the luxury of automobiles and banking accounts drained from the box office receipts."

Some of the men themselves are stronger in their denunciations. "Why," said one, "many of these prizefighters are so gluttonous for the gold they would not dream of giving a man anything over $10 who was not prepared to hand himself out to be slaughtered."

Demand Union Prices.
So the boxers' union has set out to obtain a minimum price on a fair basis for contests, according to their length, to promote the welfare of the pugilist, to obtain adequate salaries and arrange contests and generally to defeat the unscrupulous promoters. Green is a sanguine soul. In his appeal to the exponents of the art he says:

"The time has now arrived when all boxers must band themselves together for mutual support. They have the business in the hollow of their hands. If they will only join together before another season is out they will be recognized as public entertainers on the same basis as actors and vaudeville artists."

Especially important in the eyes of the professionals is the part the union means to play in the selection of referees. All referees are to be registered with the union, just as football referees are registered. Payment is to be made to them at a fixed and regular rate. This is designed to cut out several men who pose in England as referees in the ring and are declared by the boxers themselves to be crooked.

Clever "Amateur" Dog.

Attorney S. K. Williams has a performing dog, which, while it is an amateur, does stunts that have professional class to them. The dog is a little white and its name is "Midge." The attorney-in-charge gave an informal performance with his trained pet in Judge Burdick's court room yesterday morning. A hat was placed on the dog's head, a pencil in his mouth and a legal form in his paws. Midge then reared on hindmost legs and made a noise like a lawyer arguing a case.

Rebels Get New Uniforms.

The rebel soldiers at Agua Prieta and Cananea have been provided with new khaki uniforms, new brown leggings and new sabers. Several of them came to Bisbee yesterday apparently to show off their new fighting clothes. The only difference between the rebel uniforms and those of the United States soldiers in the hat band, begins and the little band of tricolor ribbon around the hat.

INDIGNATION IS

Letting of Contract for Route Objected to as Breach of Faith

SUPERVISORS MAY ACT

The violation of the armistice by the territorial board of control and, figuratively speaking, upon the white flag of truce, by letting the contract for that portion of the territorial highway between Tucson and Bisbee, created a great deal of surprise in Bisbee yesterday, following the publication of the story in the Review yesterday morning telling of the letting of the contract last Saturday.

The Review's authority for the story that the contract had been let was the Phoenix Democrat, which reported the meeting of the board last Saturday. A number of people would not discuss the matter until they learned more definite information regarding the letting of the contract.

Wanted Things Quiet.
It will be remembered that a flag of truce or an armistice was asked for by Governor Sloan, through G. A. Mauk, territorial auditor, in the latter's letter to Bruce Parley, secretary of the Bisbee board of trade, in which he expressed the hope that pending his investigation of the claims of Bisbee and other cities, "nothing further would be done in the matter."

Bisbee waited for Mr. Mauk to appear and, in accordance with the governor's request, did nothing further. When Mr. Mauk came to Bisbee he was shown over the proposed route of the highway and given the data with which Bisbee is backing her claims by President J. M. O'Connell of the board of trade.

The Route Selected.
Even while Judge O'Connell was receiving the claims of Bisbee, backed up by the support of every town in the county, the territorial board of control had already selected the route protested against by Bisbee. "I would rather wait for more definite information," said a county official yesterday, when asked what he thought of the territorial board's action. "However," he continued, "if it is true that the board has awarded the contract for the construction of the part of the highway objectionable to this county, all I have to say is that they have broken faith with us."

May Stop Tax Levy.
As the matter now stands the board has a legal right to route the highway through any section it chooses, according to the board's construction of the law, as stated in a letter to Chairman McCabe of the Cochise supervisors.

The refusal of the Cochise supervisors to levy the territorial highway tax would probably cause the board to mandamus the supervisors and attempt to force the collection of the tax.

Chairman McCabe of the county board of supervisors and Supervisor McCabe of Hereford went over the county road yesterday afternoon and visited the construction camp of the highway crew in Forest Canyon.

"THE SENIOR" VERY
ABLY PRESENTED

Juniors Pat on Original Piece and Make Large-Sized Hit

"The Senior," a mock heroic moral drama, was presented last evening to a large and appreciative audience on the Central school campus, the style of the old moral play being followed, both as to meter of the verse, entry of characters and other details. The purpose of the play was to raise funds for the paying of old debts of the athletic association and for the purchase of a section of the frieze being presented to the school by each graduating class. The play was irregularly attended and a great sum must have been raised for this commendable purpose.

But for the wind that prevailed during the latter part of the play, the weather would have been perfect for such a presentation of a play. Ordinarily the acoustics of the campus, with the building as a sounding board, is remarkably good, but the last speech, the speech of the climax, was carried away by the wind, so that the audience remained seated for a few seconds after the "excellent."

An Original Play.
"The Senior" is an original play, the work of a High school student, and is commendable for cleverness of thought and meter. The young actors all did exceedingly well, working from an actor's standpoint, under
